

ELDA COMMAND

Experiential Leadership Development Activity

NZ Army Leadership Centre | Army Command School

August 2026

ELDA Command develops leaders to perform, adapt and influence under operational pressure. Participants lead and follow through a demanding physical, mental and interpersonal activity. Observed behaviour, peer feedback and structured reflection are converted into a written Leadership Development Plan.

AIM Strengthen individual command effectiveness and collective team performance under pressure.

LEARNING OUTCOMES

1 PERFORM UNDER PRESSURE

2 LEAD UNDER LOAD

3 ADAPT BEHAVIOUR

THE PERFORMANCE CYCLE

PREPARE

- Profile everyday and under-pressure behaviour and personal drivers.
- Identify behaviours that will help or hinder performance.
- Select mental skills for the activity.

PERFORM

- Lead and follow as a team under sustained physical and mental load.
- Apply selected behaviours and mental skills in real time.
- Observe peer leadership behaviour in context.

RECOVER

- Give and receive structured face-to-face feedback.
- Reflect on critical moments during the activity.
- Build a Leadership Development Plan and keep, stop, start Game Plan.

WHAT IS COVERED

Leadership fundamentals	Command, management and leadership; the four pillars of trust; identity against reputation; and the four competency domains.
Leadership Personality Report	A validated Five Factor profile of everyday behaviour, behaviour under pressure, and underlying needs and drivers.
Self and peer feedback	One strength to sustain and one behaviour to adapt, supported by evidence observed during the activity.
Performance under pressure	Red head and blue head, performance as potential less interference, and practical mental skills including tactical breathing, self-talk, visualisation, chunking and recovery.
Leadership Development Plan	Three behaviours to sustain and three to adapt, converted into observable keep, stop and start actions.

WHAT A UNIT GETS BACK

- Evidence of leadership behaviour under real load, not self-report.
- A written, observable plan for behavioural adaptation.
- Peer feedback on how each leader's behaviour affects others.
- Alignment with the NZDF Leadership Framework, Lead Self to Lead Organisation.

DELIVERED BY NZALC. ELDA Command is delivered by the NZ Army Leadership Centre as part of the Army Command School, integrating validated psychometrics, performance psychology and experiential leadership development.

NZALC can tailor a 2027 ELDA Command serial to 2nd Commando Regiment. Initial scoping would confirm participant profile, activity design, delivery model and support requirements.
